

GERMANS RETREATING ON WIDE FRONT

MAIN LINE OF DEFENSE IS CRUSHED

FRENCH ONSLAUGHTS IN SOUTH-ERN PICARDY FORCE ENEMY TO RETIRE FROM LINE WHICH HAS HELD FOR TWO WEEKS.

30 VILLAGES CAPTURED

Advance Which Started Yesterday Morning Still Continues—French Are Now on Line Less Than

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

German forces in Southern Picardy are retreating over a wide front. After the capture of Roye by the French yesterday the German front has crumbled. The lines which have held back the French and British for the past two weeks are giving way and today's official report shows the French on a line less than three miles west of the Somme River and canal.

Thirty villages have been captured by the French in the advance which was started early Tuesday morning. Chaulnes, the center of the German line between Roye and the Somme river as it flows west through the battle field has been captured and many other vital points have been taken from the retreating enemy.

Chaulnes Taken.

RO. S. BULLETIN, PARIS.—Chaulnes has been occupied by French troops according to official statements issued today by the war office.

Progress toward the Somme was continued this morning by the French. Since yesterday afternoon the French have been taken by them. Among the larger villages taken by the French are Oucourt, Chaulnes, and Roye. The French have taken two miles northeast of Roye; Doullens, a mile and three-quarters southeast of Roye, toward Noyon and Verpilleries south of Roiselles.

Retreating Fast.

The German retreat on the Somme battle field has become precipitate. The French first and then the British have been making contact with the enemy. The French are inflicting heavy losses on the retreating Germans. French cavalry are harassing the retreating Germans in the rear. The French are making the withdrawal of the enemy forces. There is a report that General Mangin's army is crossing the Ailette river.

Prepare for Retreat.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN PLEADY—Activities behind the German lines are increasing. The French have increased greatly since the French successes around Roye and on the plateau north of Soissons. The French are preparing for an eventual retreat.

The French pushed on today and reached the edge of the Ailette. On the south they reached Any, two miles southeast of Roye.

VILLAGES TAKEN—Dompiere, south of the river and six miles west of Peronne has fallen to General Ralston's men. The intervening terrain between Dompiere and Peronne is fairly level and the German forces are struggling to hold the British in check.

French troops have moved eastward in the Roye sector, an average of nearly two miles on a front of 12 miles. The line of the principle of German defense south of the Somme apparently fell to the French because of the pressure north and south of it. General Mangin's army is moving toward Nesle which is about five miles east of his line as it stood late Tuesday. The French occupation of Hallu and the British capture of Vermandoville outflanked the German line north and south.

FIGHTING VIOLENTLY—The battle in Picardy and Artois continues with undiminished violence. Allied troops, particularly on the city-seven and southern wing of the city-seven line from north of Serape to south of Roye, are pressing the Germans steadily eastward.

USING ALL MEANS—Every means known to modern warfare are being used by the German forces. The British and French, but the heavy machine moves on. Heavy reinforcements have been thrown into the fray by the Germans. The German line of the enemy appears to be to find a line where he can stand firm enough to make an orderly retreat.

ARTILLERY DUEL—From Roye to the Oise and thence to the Aisne, heavy artillery duels are in progress. Along the Vesle the situation has quieted down again after the success of the American thrust at Bazoches and the German repulse north of Fismes.

18-45 MANPOWER BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

Washington, Aug. 28.—Passing the senate yesterday without a dissenting vote, the draft bill, which extends the draft ages eighteen to twenty, now awaits only the presidential signature before becoming a law. The bill as it passed the senate contains the amendment which would exempt the aged and infirm from the draft. An amendment which would exempt strikers from the draft was defeated by a vote of 60 to 34.

Germans Draw Russia into Signing 3 New Treaties at Berlin

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Copenhagen, Aug. 28.—German and Russian plenipotentiaries Tuesday, according to an official telegram from Berlin, signed three treaties supplementary to the Brest-Litovsk treaty.

The treaties, which include an supplementing the treaty of peace as well as a financial agreement and on dealing with the civil law.

The treaties are the result of negotiations which have been going on in Berlin for several weeks between the Germans and the Russians. The treaties were signed at the German ministry of foreign affairs.

Hun Submarine Sinks Three-masted Schooner Off Coast of Canada

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A Canadian Atlantic port, Aug. 28.—The three-masted schooner Vianca was captured and sunk by a German submarine Saturday night. Her crew had been taken to a Canadian port with a cargo of tobacco.

The crew of the submarine told Captain Burke of the Vianca that they had sunk the schooner and that they had taken the crew to a Canadian port with a cargo of tobacco.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY CAN'T PROSECUTE SELF AFTER "BEATING" EDITOR

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Salem, Ore., Aug. 28.—When the prosecuting attorney so far forgets his dignity as to beat up a newspaper editor, and the editor swears to a warrant for the prosecuting attorney's arrest, the prosecuting attorney can't prosecute himself for the assault.

Such was the ruling of Attorney-General Brown, who was asked to outline a procedure in a case from Columbia county.

At St. Helena, Oregon, Editor Ham Kramm, 70 years old, remarked editorially in his paper that it would be an excellent war move if the government would draft all useless attorneys in the army.

In the army, he declared, attorneys would draft all useless attorneys in the army.

As Metaker didn't care to issue a warrant for his own arrest, the matter was put up to the attorney-general.

Both sides have now cooled down considerably—but they know what to do next time the question arises.

SAILORS DON'T LIKE NAME OF JACKIE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Great Lakes, Ill., Aug. 28.—The word "Jackie" is doing the rounds among the men of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, their patience exhausted by public use of the term in referring to sailors, have declared a strike.

Instead of being a term of affectionate esteem as intended by the public, the title is highly offensive and in no way describes the true character of the sailors.

They added that the Great Lakes sailors are real men and real fighters—not magazine covers.

The Great Lakes Bulletin, official paper of the station, points out that the good meaning civilians who insisted on picturing the men as rosy cheeked youngsters who had joined the navy must be supplied with new titles if "Jackie" is to be buried.

So the paper offers these synonyms: SAILOR.

OR.

JACK.

BLUEJACKET.

"If any civilian," called a sailor in this station, "molly-coddle there would be a grand fight," says the Bulletin.

"Yet the sailors stand for the appellation 'Jackie'."

Lights Installed.

Wausau.—Eight concrete light standards have been placed on the new Falls dam, which is equipped with lights and lights. The standards are six feet high.

SWING FORWARD IN SECTOR EAST OF ARRAS AND CAPTURE HAUCOURT REACHING OUTSKIRTS OF REMY, BOURY AND NOTRE DAME.

ADVANCE IN FLANDERS

Extend Line Over Four-Mile Front Astride the Neuf-Berquin Road—Late Dispatches Tell of Victory in Far East.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

While the French have been smashing the enemy front along the Chaulnes-Roye line, the British have swung forward in the sector east of Arras. North of the Arras-Cambrai road they have reached the outskirts of the villages of Haucourt, Remy, and Boury-Notre-Dame, about a mile east of the position where they were known to be yesterday and well east of the Hindenburg line. South of the Somme the British have taken Haucourt, while north of the river they have gained nearly all of Tromeuf wood.

In the Flanders area the British have advanced their line over a front of four miles astride the Neuf Berquin road. This is the area from which the Germans have been retiring for the last three weeks. Dispatches from the far east tell of allied success against the Bolshevik forces.

Take Trones Wood.

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE—British troops today completed the capture of Trones wood north of the river Somme. Canadian troops in their advance before the Somme yesterday captured more than 2,000 Germans.

While intermittent fighting continued virtually everywhere along the British front the battle begins to show signs of blowing up.

The Germans have delivered many counter attacks but none of them has gained anything. In virtually every case counter attacks have finally had a disastrous result for the Germans for when the British did retire to their original places it was only for a brief period.

Storming Cities.

LONDON.—British forces fighting east of Arras have reached the outskirts of Haucourt, Remy and Boury. CAPTAIN FRED RAU SEVERELY WOUNDED FIGHTING IN FRANCE

JANESVILLE BOY FORMERLY WITH COMPANY M SEVERELY WOUNDED AND GASED WHILE GOING OVER THE TOP

RECENTLY PROMOTED

Formerly First Lieutenant With Local Company. He Was Recently Appointed Captain in Signal Corps

Shot in both arms and legs and gassed while going over the top, was the fate of Fred Rau of this city. In a letter received by Marcell Dalton, Captain Rau tells of his wounds and states that he is confined to a hospital behind the lines.

The letter states that he was severely wounded in action on August 4th, while going after the Germans. He was shot in both arms and legs, and also was slightly gassed.

Captain Rau left this city as 1st Lieutenant, with Company M, but was later transferred to Co. L, where he remained until he was recently promoted to a Captain of a Signal Battalion.

In his letter, Lieut. Rau tells of the fight on the day he was injured and describes very clearly the wonderful work being accomplished by the Americans.

Captain Rau is a graduate of St. John's Military Academy, and was one of the original members of Co. M. He was an excellent soldier and was commended by all to be the best drilled Lieutenant in the Wisconsin National Guard, when they were stationed at Camp McArthur, Waco, Texas.

He was born and raised in this city, and with the exception of the time he spent at school, he has resided here.

Indian, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rau, of Milwaukee, who formerly lived at 512 West Milwaukee street. He was married shortly before leaving for France.

SCARLET RIDERS ARE GOING TO SIBERIA

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Regina, Sask., Aug. 28.—Canada's scarlet riders are going to Siberia. The provinces from the Great Lakes to the Pacific have thrilled by the official announcement that a unit of Royal Northwest Mounted Police will be mobilized immediately at Regina to form part of a Canadian force in eastern Asia.

Last April permission was given the members of this famous patrol to enlist for overseas service. Instantly scores of these men joined the military forces of the Dominion and since then a number have been decorated for bravery in action. Their departure left gaps in the ranks of the Mounted Police but they were rapidly filled.

The first unit of policemen-soldiers to consist of 160 men and 180 horses. A limited number of officers will be accepted, but all must be expert horsemen and crack shots. The fame of the "M. P." must be upheld in Siberia, it is declared.

For more than forty years the reputation of the Mounted Police has been maintained by the hearts of the criminals from the grain fields and mountains of the American border to the white wastes of the Arctic. Stories of their achievements throb most form a part of western Canada's history. When a mounted policeman started after a criminal he brought him back or reported where he buried him.

Indian troubles in the district now comprised by the Dakotas and Montana were chiefly responsible for the organization of the Canadian mounted police. Sioux Indians often fled into Canada when pursued closely by American soldiers. When they began to commit depredations in the Dominion the mounted police were sent to the border.

From a band of about 150 riders the organization grew to a body of about 1,200. Every member was a picked man who could shoot, ride, trail, and live for days on food picked in the open while stalking his man. Now and then the fugitive shot first and killed, but mounted police records make the claim that the state was wiped clean in every instance before the case was finally closed.

Soldier Killed.

La Crosse.—Joseph J. Mallek, 31st trench mortar company, Camp Robinson, was killed Sunday while returning to camp from this city. He was struck by a train. Joseph Teiz, companion of Mallek, was found on the right of way Sunday, by soldiers, and taken to a hospital, badly hurt. He was also hit by the train.

CHURCH FEDERATION PLAN WILL BE PUT INTO EFFECT SEPT. 8

FIRST PUBLIC WORSHIP TO BE HELD IN CITY ON SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 8.

TRIAL OF 10 MONTHS

Federation Plan To Be Given Trial Until First of July Next Year When Vote Will Be Taken

Under the church federation plan, which has been in the hands of the committee, it has been decided to hold the first public worship in this city on Sept. 8. The first plan considered by the Federation committee was to begin worship on Sept. 1, but because a large number of interested persons would be out of the city on that date, the committee was led to set Sept. 8 as the date for the first public worship, when important announcements of the plan will be made.

The work is being planned largely as a test of service to the community, and it does not justify itself on these grounds, it shall be abandoned at the close of the active year. The period of the trial has been determined by the committee to last until the first of July of next year, and it is their unanimous belief that the time is none too much to organize the work and give the plan a fair trial.

The grounds upon which our federation of effort was discussed from the first, is a trial, the success of failure of which is to be ascertained by the results of the trial. The church is the social agent. This alone was decided upon and all details were left to the committee. It should be in character so as to avoid all unnecessary raising of hypothetical questions. In so doing, it was assumed that all Christians equally would be able to contribute to the work and to test the church for results, and where its worth is tested by our common Lord. If the enterprise were successful on the basis of better Christian service, we would be able to render that service for both Christian and patriotic reasons. If it is not successful, we would equally, upon Christian and patriotic grounds wish to discontinue the federation.

Taking their stand on this common Christian ground, the officers submitted the matter to the churches and left the details to the Federation committee.

The next point is that of the method of assessing the value of the work. This, in the opinion of the committee, should be done on a democratic basis, depending upon each to vote honestly upon the merits of the trial, based upon results. The committee decided that all who make the trial should be consulted in evaluating results. Accordingly all who enter the trial should be asked to vote, and the vote, by blind ballot, on the question—"In view of the times, and the service rendered to Christ and our fellowmen, do you think our Federation effort has been a success as compared with the former plan of separate church work?"

The committee's complete plan of the trial in brief, as follows:

1. The trial shall be on the basis of results in Christian service alone.
2. The trial period shall continue until the first of July next.
3. During the last two weeks of June, each separate church group shall hold a meeting as convenient, and without any discussion and by blind ballot, vote on the proposition whether or not the trial has been a success.
4. Christian fitness admonishes that there must be no loving in respect to this vote, but each one to give his vote on the basis of his observations of the results in service.
5. If as many as one-third of those voting in either group meeting, shall declare by their vote that the plan of church effort has not been as effective in service to the times as separate church work, then it is agreed that steps will immediately be taken to discontinue the trial.

The committee stated that they were depending on all who favored the plan heartily, to help in the interest of the integrity of each church, the very liberal percentage required to declare the plan a success, and to the continued work of the trial.

On the other hand, expected that any who for any reason looked with disfavor on the plan at first, would not lack the Christian grace to put the whole matter thus beyond the realm of difference of opinion as among ourselves, and on the high ground of Christian service rendered and so give the matter from the first a fair trial.

KENNETH PARKER GETS COMMISSION

Popular Janesville Boy Receives Commission as Ensign in Naval Aviation. Is Stationed at Pensacola, Florida.

George S. Parker received a telegram this morning from his son Kenneth, who is stationed at Pensacola, Florida, announcing that he had received his commission as Ensign in the navy on April 20th, 1918 and after serving a short time he secured a transfer to the Naval Aviation. He was ordered to the Boston school of Technology for his ground training, after which he was sent to Pensacola for his aviation training. He now holds the rank of Chief Quartermaster at the Southern Training camp.

Ensign Parker is one of Janesville's most popular young men and his many friends will be pleased to learn of his success. He is a graduate of the local high school.

WILLIAM LANGDON CALLED TO COLORS

Popular Janesville Young Man Will Enter Artillery Officers Training Camp At Camp Zachary Taylor, Kentucky.

William P. Langdon, one of Janesville's most well known young business men received his call from Washington this morning to report at once for the Artillery Officers Training Camp at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Kentucky.

Mr. Langdon who is chairman of the Member Council of the Chamber of Commerce, made his intention of going in the army to his friends several days ago, but it was not expected that he would receive his call for several weeks.

He received a telegram this morning at ten o'clock requesting him to report at Camp Zachary Taylor, immediately. Mr. Langdon has completed his preparation for the training camp and will leave for the southern camp late this afternoon.

THRESHING OUTFITS BEING INSPECTED

Federal Inspector In County to See That Food Administration Regulations are Observed by Threshers.

Federal Threshing Inspector Clarence Leamon is traveling through the country this week inspecting the threshing outfits and separators. He is subjecting the machines to tests and is inspecting the most thoroughly so that the greatest results may be obtained. He reports that good work is being done, but that in some cases there is no saving of the grain, which is a waste. In these instances he urges compliance with the food administration's order that it must be used.

He has also taken with him the grain crops throughout the country are uniformly large.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL WILL START SOON

Two changes in the child labor law which go into effect Sept. 1st, which are of interest to employers and employees, are being discussed by the Vocational School.

BAN ON SUNDAY AUTO RIDES TO SAVE "GAS"

VOLUNTARY COMPLIANCE WITH FUEL ADMINISTRATION'S ORDER WILL PREVENT MADE MANDATORY.

Washington, D. C.—The fuel administration on Tuesday called upon the public in states east of the Mississippi to cease the use of all except motor vehicles, motor cycles and motor boats on Sundays until further notice as a gasoline conservation measure.

Only voluntary compliance with the letter and spirit of the request will prevent the issuance of a mandatory order prohibiting the use of gasoline for all vehicles except those for hire are included in the curtailment program.

Motor vehicles to which the restrictions do not apply are announced as: Ambulances, fire apparatus, police and conveyances used for funerals.

Railway equipment using gasoline, repair outfits employed by telephone and public utility companies, and other vehicles to which the restriction in rural communities where transportation by steam or electricity is not available.

The action was taken by the fuel administration, it was stated, to meet a threatened shortage of gasoline for shipment overseas, created by increased domestic demand during the war.

OVER ONE HUNDRED GATHER AT BANQUET

Over One Hundred Citizens Gather at Grand Hotel to Bid Farewell to Lieut. W. A. Munn, Who Will Soon Leave to Enter the Army.

What was considered as one of the greatest send-off receptions ever given to a local man was given last night when over one hundred citizens of Janesville gathered at the Grand Hotel to bid farewell to Lieut. W. A. Munn, who will leave Saturday for Fort Riley, Kansas.

The guests of the evening were kept in the best of humor throughout the evening by the witty jokes of Father William Mahoney, formerly of Janesville, who came from Monches, to be present at the meeting.

FOR CHARITY. There is something so ghastly about some of the plans to raise funds for the purpose of charity these war days that one often shudders. Still, however, all war days were alike. Always there is the same old story of the people who are suffering and the people who are helping them. We know that in the civil war huge bazars were held, charity affairs, at which vast sums of money were raised to be used for soldier purposes.

Of course the requirement was not so great in those days. The demand for funds was not so constant. America today must raise funds to help the people of many nations whose lands have been overrun by the hordes of savage Hun. Devastated and ruined, women outraged, girls absolutely sold into slavery and young boys maimed and old men killed.

America must help rehabilitate these nations and it takes money to do this. Aside from our other war activities we must set aside a portion for the aid of these innocent sufferers whose sole fault lay in the fact they lived in the pathway of the ruthless and merciless Hun invaders. This is part of the war toll that comes to us.

Recently a pavement dance was held in Janesville to raise funds for these poor unfortunate. The ladies who worked so untiringly to make it a success had the satisfaction of knowing the public responded. The money raised will help sustain life in many an orphan child in the war-swept land where ruin and devastation have taken its toll. It is ghastly to think of our money being used for dancing or eating ice cream, but with all the other war activities which demand funds so constantly it is consistent, and if by dancing we can help the sufferers, let's all dance whenever the proper occasion comes. For even there will be no one else left but us to be merry if it is in a good cause.

PHILIPP'S CANDIDACY.

From the talk of the anti-Bolshevik men one would expect that every man who had any claim of loyalty in his blood should vote against him because he opposed the war before it was declared and objected to the draft law and other war measures. His opponents praise upon loyalty but fail to note the fact that Philipp's father, a German immigrant, enlisted in the Civil war when soldiers were needed, fought all through the struggle, leaving his wife and struggling brood of children to live as best they could. That Philipp's ancestors fought with Napoleon against the world and that one of his ancestors faced the mob that surrounded the guillotine and the guillotine, wrecked the palace and made the King a prisoner, Philipp is not a son of peace.

He grew up taught the tales and horrors of war. His father told him of the Civil war and the tales of ancestors, related of Europe, torn by strife and desolation. His father was a volunteer and later conscription. It is not a wonder his son did likewise. He believed the American youth would rally to the flag and should be given the opportunity to do so instead of being compelled to. Is that a crime?

His opponents have failed to place in opposition a man whose ancestors can boast of even a Civil war record, let alone a Spanish war or even the present war test of loyalty. Opponents are published denouncing Philipp and yet they do not tell of his wonderful work of rehabilitation of the state finances and the redemption of state debts from a state of chaos to one of a budget of various departments, who were named for efficiency and not for political purposes. The trouble with Philipp is that he did not deal out jobs according to the schedule preferred by former anxious politicians who wanted a "say-so" in political affairs. It is not a question of loyalty with Philipp, but a question of loyalty with the people. He is merely a bit of clever camouflage to cover the real intent; it is revenge. If they can succeed in fooling the people to make their personal ends meet the desired result, then the public in the long run will be the loser.

GERMANY AND WILSON.

On the western front, and indeed, wherever conflict is to be had with the enemy, the allied commanders have him in the aggressive language of the prize ring, prodding and sparring for wind. The war in fact is not being fought in the German way, and as there is only one German way, the embarrassment of the German commanders is obvious. The German commander that the rules of the game call for a five-day offensive with more or less gain, followed by a period of comparative rest, when everybody "digs in," says an Eastern exchange.

But, contrary to the rules of the prize ring, Marshal Foch declines to call "time" at regular intervals. He breaks all the rules of German warfare by going on hitting when the enemy is reeling from the last blow. After an offensive which has recovered more than a thousand square miles of territory, and is hitting harder than ever, Field Marshal Hindenburg is figuratively described as his left list, and General Pershing is what we are given to understand is called a "punishing right."

It was obvious in these circumstances that a drive for peace would be in order. There must be a sense of humor somewhere in Germany, but perhaps the German people are too busy and too worried to see the supreme absurdity of posing President Wilson as the insatiable demon who originates and controls the war. Every effort by the Germans to create dissension among the allies is defeated at the start by their own psychology.

"In the Norddeutsche Zeitung, in an editorial evidently intended for foreign consumption, there is a proposition the astonishing proposition that we are in this war not merely to destroy the Teutonic Powers, but to destroy the allies as well. No one can read the title of this effort without something more than a smile. It is called: 'American militarism and an American peace.'"

"Now that we know the Englishman better, we recognize that he has a different sense of humor but one as abiding as our own. This Prussian journal's effort has been received in England with a chuckle, the more hearty because what the Zeitung says is true to the extent that we are supplying the allies with munitions, playing the allies with munitions, and money. For the freedom of the world we call this a good investment, and we are not in the usury business, while modern Germany has never been in any other."

"The Kaiser is stupid enough to win when he is hit, and we may cheerfully assume that President Wilson and Marshal Foch have drawn the correct inference. They propose to hit him hard and hit often, and let him draw all the false inferences he likes about ulterior motives. Our present task is to put him out of business, and he shows that he knows it in every word he speaks."

BUILDING ON LIES. During the world has gradually come to the conclusion that truth and honesty are the only sure foundation. Lies do not usually fare well.

International relations have gradually been coming to the same happy Modern governments have not been broken treaties with the cheerful ease of former periods. They realize that they must make good on their promises if future words are to have any effect.

Consequently the faithless violation of all pledges by the German government ignores all human experience. It defies the standards of honor that we have built up through long struggle. It promises and then denies, without explanation and indemnities, then goes in and seizes great portions of their territory and demands a vast indemnity. It broke its solemn pledges to Belgium, and then massacred its men and raped its women because they had spirit enough to resist.

All through this war it has built its hopes of victory on lies. It started the war and then claimed it was attacked. It appeals to the terror of its ignorant soldiers by telling them that if taken prisoner they will be subject to barbaric cruelties and death.

Can a nation succeed that thus defies the whole experience of the human race and all the standards of honor and truth? There are a great many of us who would like to migrate to some other sphere of existence if lies are to trample on truth and run the world.

"Truth is mighty and will prevail," is no more doctrine of a great philosopher. It is the experience of all peoples. What has been in the past will be again. No government founded on lies has lived yet. It is not likely that the Hun power can upset all the course of human history.

MARCHING TO BERLIN.

The military experts, both here and in Europe, have been divided into two parties, "Easterners" and "Westerners." The Easterners favored attacking Germany in the rear through Russia, Austria, or the Balkans. The Westerners believed Germany is most vulnerable on the Western front where we can easiest reach her.

The great difficulty about attack through Austria or the Balkan peninsula is that the ground includes some of the most rugged territory in the world. The Italians accomplished in the first two years of their war against the Alpine heights they could advance but in the precipitous slopes of the Alps, progress into this territory, but had to fall back since the Germans were getting so near Paris. There is one rugged mountain chain, the Vosges. Behind that the country is level.

It is full of promise for the future that our boys seem to be taking over this part of the line.

A fairly strong attack there would compel the Germans to divert heavy forces from the present fighting ground. Then it would seem as if the English could surely break through in the comparatively level territory of the north over which most of the fighting has taken place.

Now that the soldiers have discarded the overseas cap, someone wants to know what will become of the broad-brim khaki hats? Well, any girl with sixteen cents worth of ribbon can do great execution with one of them.

The people who are worrying because 1,539,000 women have taken men's jobs, may be reminded that the increased spending provide a lot of new jobs for someone.

If the allies can capture in a month 1,000 square miles from the Germans, with only 300,000 Americans in the trenches how about next year with 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 of the Americans?

Some people are worrying because there will be a surplus of women after the war, but anyway a good looking man may have less trouble in finding a woman to support him.

The fact that Fire Prevention day has been postponed to November 2, is not a sufficient reason for dropping those lighted matches in the waste basket in the meantime.

The men who have joined the anti-collared movement will be highly disapproved of by the women who wear those comfortable deeply low cut waists.

The Germans are displaying their far-famed courage and manliness by discharging torpedoes at little fishing boats armed only with hooks and lines.

About how many of our patriots, at great personal and business sacrifice, consent to serve their country in congress and the legislature.

Just Folks.

ALONG THE PATHS O' GLORY.

Along the paths of glory there are faces new today,
There are youthful hearts and sturdy
That have found the westward way.
From the rugged roads o' duty they
Have turned without a sigh
To mingle with their brothers who
Were not afraid, to die.

And they're looking back an smiling
At the loved ones left behind,
With the Old Flag flying o'er them,
And they're calling "Never min."

"Never mind, oh gentle mothers, that Never shall not come again;
Never mind the years of absence,
For we've found the paths o' glory.
For we've found the paths o' glory,
And we've learned the things we died
For are the truth that never die.
Now there's never hurt can harm us,
The memory of the soldiers of the legions unafraid."

Along the paths of glory there are faces new today,
And the heavenly flags are flying as they march along the way.
For the world is set on fire with the joy that they know it at its best.
By the sacrifice and courage of the boys who go to rest.
Now they've claimed eternal splendor and they've won eternal youth
And they've joined the gallant legions of the men who served the truth.

ROY K. MOULTON

Emperor Charles of the House of Hapsburg seems to have about as many friends as the man who brings a case of whooping cough into the neighborhood.

Barbers' strikes are not always serious.
They had one once in the country town where we used to live and nobody ever found out about it.

Ferdinand of Bulgaria has gone to Bad Nauheim, which is not the only bad place he will go to.

No use stating our war aims again.
So far as the individual soldier is concerned, his aim seems to be pretty satisfactory.

Kaiser has called in a specialist to save his army. Alas, we will hear soon of the operation was successful, but the patient died of the shock.

Just to show that the war is not the only thing that is going on, a Connecticut man has invented a non-refillable pocketbook which comes to relieve a long-felt want.

Speaking of strong drafts, the wind is going to assume a velocity of about

WEEPING FERD.
Bulgaria has a beak like a bird
And an eye that is shifty and sinister.

He's a kultural czar with a soul white as far,
And would never take him for a minister.

But morose is his song and he weeps all day long
For events in his kingdom have shaken him.

His old pal, Bloody Bill, a disgraceful old pill,
Has hid the bankroll and forsaken him.

So he weeps and he weeps and lins magrums for keeps.
He was not content with one bird in hand.

He reached for too much, with his murderous clutch,
The huge sounds "Tps" for Beast
Ferdinand.

"Riding from Philadelphia to New York we met an official of the weather bureau, Washington. He knows more about the weather and why it never comes out right than possibly anybody else. Concerning the present heat wave he said:

"We must get just so much heat every year. If we don't get it in August, sometimes it comes in bunches, like bananas, and sometimes all stringing out, like spaghetti, but it always comes. We must get it."
That was the best technical explanation we had ever heard. We asked him if he couldn't arrange it to have about 15 degrees of August heat assigned to January. Apparently he had never thought of that.

"It sounds like a good idea," he said. "I'll try it."

And we know he will, for he's the boy who can make the weather jump through, even though it always jumps the wrong way.

Glad that settled.

in the Day's News

BRIGADIER GENERAL BENJAMIN D. FOULDS.

The recent selection of Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulds by Gen. Pershing to be the head of the air service for the "First Army" has brought to the forefront a young man who has made an enviable record.

He is America's youngest brigadier general. Only thirty-six, a native of Connecticut, he rose in military circles from the ranks.

He enlisted at the age of twenty, as a private, saw service in the Philippines with the Nineteenth Infantry.

Foulds was the second United States army officer to fly in a heavier-than-air machine. His light weight favored him and he was picked by Orville Wright as a passenger in the first army tests in flights from Fort Myer to Alexandria, Virginia.

His intrepid manner convinced army officials that he had the nerve to undertake any aerial job that might come his way abroad.

The sequel was told in cablegrams from Europe a few days ago, when Pershing announced he had singled out Foulds to direct the airships of the American army abroad. He succeeded Colonel Robert N. Paddock.

Foulds is in full command of American flyers at the front.

Great Stocks of the Right
Goods in This Great War Year

At no time in the past has this store been such an important factor as during this time of war—important we mean as a factor in the economic buying it enables every one of our customers to do.

We are now presenting a store full of new merchandise that is a striking demonstration of this.

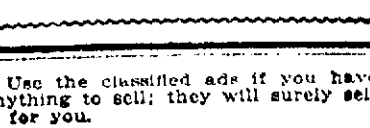

On all sides of the store is merchandise that is, at this date, impossible to obtain in the markets. It is here because we kept carefully informed of the developments in the respective markets and made our engagements for qualities and quantities at the most favorable times.

For the same reasons other lines in widely different goods are marked at prices that are exceptionally favorable and that will of course be higher on subsequent purchases of similar grades.

The store with its fine Autumn and Winter stocks and its many special shopping opportunities offer an interesting time to all its visitors.

Carolyn held up her hand. "Second thoughts are always best! Meaning—me!"

"He changed his mind, though," Rosamund protested. "He proposed to me last!"

Carolyn grinned at her. "Why, he might just as well have counted us out, like playing tag to see who's it!" She pointed to each in turn, calling out, "My—mother—told—me—to—take—this—one!" The last was Rosamund.

"No, thanks!" Rosamund resumed. "I don't intend to be it!" She dropped her voice a little, glancing at the door. "Why, you ought to hear what Miss Fisher has been telling me about the business here! Why, it seems Mr. Bonistelle's awfully hard up—barely paying expenses—all sorts of unpaid bills piling up, too. He may have to move over to Sixth avenue, even! Hasn't he got a nerve, though?"

Mrs. Royaltan rose like a Spartan, determined, hard. "Girls, I know what I'm going to do! I intend to tell him just what I think of him, and send him packing!"

"There!" Carolyn interposed. "Now, you're talking, Rena! Let's get down to business, and decide what to do. We're all in the same fix and we must hold together."

"Yes, we ought to take a stand," Rena agreed.

"And Hall ought to take a tumble!" from Rosamund.

"See here, let's do this thing according to Floyd," said Carolyn, taking the lead with all her humor. "First thing is, are we one and all agreed to reject him tonight?"

"Yes!" Mrs. Royaltan and Rosamund came in chorus.

"Well, then," said Carolyn, "I promise, as well, I hope to die!" She crossed herself. "Now, this is a serious thing, ladies. No one of us can go back on our word. It must be one—two—three—and out for it. Bonistelle. Well, that's agreed. Now for the details—"

"Oh, I simply can't wait to tell him!" exclaimed Mrs. Royaltan. "I hate the man!"

"So do I!" growled Rosamund. "I think he ought to be horsewhipped!"

"Well," said Carolyn. "I must say, agree with you both. I consider Hall Bonistelle is a perfectly conceived and admirably rendered cad!"

At this moment the door swung open and, humming a jolly tune, it walked Hall Bonistelle. There was a trio of "Oh's!" in soprano, mezzo-soprano and contralto as the ladies caught sight of him.

CHAPTER IX.

He came in with a smile, but a first glimpse of his visitors, it faded swiftly into a look of terror. But Hall was game; he pulled himself together and smiled again. It was with a fairly Waltham, Mass.—"I suffered from a nervous, rundown condition, and loss of strength so it was hard for me to get around and do my work. After other medicines had failed to help me Vinol restored my health and strength and I heartily recommend it to any one suffering from a nervous, rundown condition."—Mrs. R. M. Little.

creditable expression of affability that he exclaimed: "Well, this is an unexpected pleasure!" He went from one to another offering his hand, then he drew off his gloves and looked his guests over anxiously. The atmosphere was like that before a thunder storm.

Then he drew a breath of sudden relief. Flodie was entering. Flodie was smiling. Seeing that smile, he seemed to come to himself, as if after a disturbing dream.

"Oh!" said Flodie, "are you back already? I was so busy I didn't hear you."

"Yes, I forgot my watch. You know I've got to have it repaired. I'll get it now." He turned to the ladies with a new enthusiasm. "I'm awfully sorry I'm in such a hurry, but I've got a lot to do this afternoon."

Flodie appeared nervous. "Miss Gale is waiting for me to do her proofs, you know," she said. "I've finished the others, Mr. Bonistelle. I think the ladies will excuse me; I can attend to them, all right!" She walked slowly back to the stockroom, giving him a meaningful glance as she left.

"Oh, yes, don't wait, Mr. Bonistelle," said Mrs. Royaltan.

"Well, I'll have to go then, I suppose. Make yourselves quite at home ladies; I'll be back in a minute." He left impatiently.

Carolyn thought a moment. "Say, we've got so much to talk over, we can't discuss it here. Hall may be back any moment. I'll tell you. Wait a moment!" She walked up to the stockroom door and opened it. "Miss Fisher!" she called.

Flodie appeared, wondering what she could be wanted for.

"I say, Miss Fisher, couldn't we go into the reception room for a while? We've got some things to talk over. About the party tonight, you know."

"Why certainly," was Flodie's reply. "The studio's being decorated, but the reception room is all ready, and no body will disturb you. Go right in."

"Come on!" said Carolyn, turning to the other ladies. "We'll have it out right now, and decide on everything." She led the way in.

Hardly had they disappeared when Flodie emerged again. She took a step toward the door they had left ajar, and listened. Then she sat down at her desk, smiling.

"So far, so good!" she thought. Her scheme had worked perfectly. It was not for nothing that Flodie had watched women, laughed at them, analyzed them and fled them away in her mind. But now, what? Was she any nearer to getting Hall for herself? Dubiously she considered her prospects. She was as intensely concentrated on the effort as the tiger waiting to leap on her prey. All to be seen of it, however, was a little, quaint, gray-eyed girl, pathetically bending over her accounts.

It was not many minutes before Hall came in, thoughtfully winding a gold watch. He looked about, surprised.

"Where are they? Gone?"

"Oh, no," said Flodie. "In there!" She nodded toward the reception room.

Hall walked toward the door and looked in. Flodie watched him sharply. "Say," he said finally, turning to her, "there are three mighty nice girls, didn't you know it?"

"I'm mumbled Flodie.

"They're all so sweet—by Jove, I hardly know which one I like best!" he went on. "They're charming; don't you think so?"

Flodie was very busy writing in a little book. "Yes," she said without looking up.

"No, but really, Flo!"

"Oh, yes; really."

"By Jove, I hardly know which one I do like best!" Hall peeped into the reception room again curiously.

"Well, you can't marry them all, can you?" Flodie looked up now, biting the end of her penholder viciously.

"No, that's the deuce of it. I almost wish I could."

"Mr. Bonistelle!"

"Well, then, I've got to jilt two of them. I wonder which one will be the lucky girl! Of course it all depends upon what they say to me tonight."

He stopped suddenly and turned to Flodie. "Say, what are they talking about in there, anyway?"

"Oh, I don't know. Clothes, I guess."

Flodie held her breath.

"By Jove!" His face changed swiftly. "Oh, pshaw, though, nice girls don't go about telling their love affairs, do they? What the deuce are you laughing at?"

"Oh, no!" said Flodie. "Nice girls never get as intimate as that. On all subjects that concern the heart, Mr. Bonistelle, women are invariably as silent as the grave!"

He looked hard at her. "That's evidently sarcasm. Say, I'm worried!" He walked anxiously back to the door and looked in again. "By Jove," he exclaimed, "this is getting on my nerves. Lord, if they should flood out! See here, what were they talking about while they were in here waiting? Do you know?"

She looked up ingenuously, and replied, "Oh, I was in the stockroom, printing proofs. They were all alone here in the office."

"Well, I wish to goodness you had listened. I'd hate to lose four millions of dollars on account of them. See here, Flo, I can't stand this. I feel as if I were smoking a pipe on top of a barrel of gunpowder. There may be an explosion any minute. You can't tell what may touch it off—why, a single word, perhaps. I'm not going to leave until they're out of here. I don't care how long they stay! I don't dare to, till I see what happens. I'll go into my room now, and you call me when they're gone, will you?" He waited on the threshold of the studio.

Flodie nodded assent. "All right!"

"And," he continued, "if anything breaks, you give me the tip and I'll get out the back way!" He left, grinning sardonically.

As soon as he had gone Flodie rose and tiptoed to the half-open door. She watched and listened, now, with far more interest than she had displayed before Hall. Inside, the voices rose and fell in animated conversation: Mrs. Royaltan's always sentimental and reproachful, Carolyn's high and merry, Rosamund's a surly contralto note. Flodie's face changed from hope to fear, from hatred to mirth.

She was so absorbed in the scene that she did not notice when the hall door opened, and Mr. Smallish entered, bearing a newspaper.

He stared at her, then coughed. Flodie whirled round and faced him. "Oh!" she stammered. "How you frightened me, Alfred!"

"I beg your pardon, Miss Fisher. But say, did you know what they got in the paper about Mr. Bonistelle?" He displayed an afternoon edition.

Impatiently, Flodie snatched the sheet from his hands. "Oh, dear! What was it about?"

At this minute the three ladies entered the room, all talking at once. At sight of Flodie and Alfred they grew silent.

"Why, it said how Mr. Bonistelle had inherited—"

"Oh, never mind!" Flodie exclaimed excitedly. "That's a lie, anyway." She tried to carry the paper to her desk, glancing terrified at the ladies.

"What is it?" Carolyn demanded. "Is there something about Mr. Bonistelle in the paper?"

Alfred bowed. "Yes, miss, he's come into a lot of money, it seems—"

"Alfred!" cried Flodie, "you go downstairs and see if those ice-cream freezers have come yet."

"Yes!" Then he turned again to Carolyn. "It was on condition he—"

Flodie in her excitement had dropped the paper. Quick as a hawk, Carolyn picked it up. She scanned it swiftly. "Here it is!" she cried in triumph. "Eccentric Millionaire's Queer Bequest—Nephew Will Get Four Millions If Married in Haste—A Good Chance for Some Nice Girl! Well, isn't that disgusting!"

"Go on!" cried Rosamund and Mrs. Royaltan angrily.

"Hall Bonistelle, the well-known photographer at No. 555 Fifth ave—"

"Goodness! It is Hall, isn't it?" Mrs. Royaltan exclaimed.

"Oh, for heaven's sake, shut up!" from Rosamund.

"Oh, dear! What was it about?"

"655 Fifth avenue, will have to do his wedding in a hurry if he wishes to capture the legacy left him by a rich and eccentric uncle, the late John Beasley Bonistelle of Central Park West. As the residuary legate, the nephew is promised something over four million dollars, on condition of his being married on or before his twenty-eighth birthday. As this occurs tomorrow, Mr. Bonistelle has a scant forty-eight hours in which to make good, and unless he has already picked his bride—"

"Let me see it!" Rosamund whipped the paper out of Carolyn's hand, and devoured the notice with her own eyes.

"What did it say, by his twenty-eighth birthday?" Mrs. Royaltan asked in great anxiety.

"On or before," said Carolyn, frowning. She looked over Rosamund's shoulder.

Flodie looked up with a quick frown of her head. Her eyes snapped.

"Four millions!" Rosamund put down the paper.

Dinner Stories

St. Douglas Haig is fond of relating the story of a Scotchman who bored his English friends boasting what a fine country Scotland was. "Why did you leave it if you liked it so well?" he was asked.

"Well, it was like this," said Sandy. "In Scotland everybody was as clever as myself!"

There was a city lady visiting some relatives in the country and as she was walking down the lane she saw some calves.

Thinking to display her knowledge she remarked, "D'you see those little cowlets?" Bill, the farm boy, came up about that time, heard her remark, and said "Excuse me, miss, but them's bullocks."

"It is the duty of every one of you to make at least one person happy during the week," said the Sunday school teacher. "Have you?"

"I did," said Johnny promptly. "That's nice. What did you do?"

"I went to see my aunt, and she's always happy when I go home again."

"Could I sell you a burglar alarm, madam?" asked the peddler.

"Are you sure it will work?"

"Yes, madam, I speak with some authority on the subject. I was once a burglar myself."

"Dear me. What caused you to reform?"

"This alarm."

A French shopkeeper wrote to one of his customers as follows:

"I am able to offer you cloth like the enclosed sample for 9 francs the meter. In case I do not hear from you I shall conclude that you wish to pay only 8 francs. In order to lose no time, I accept the last mentioned price."
